{quote} Thanks for the response. I was hoping news last night for me (this morning) would have offered a turn but to no avail....I am uncomfortable but not in pain so I am just going to close that chart for a while and check in after major news. 💪

Your posts are results of typical over trading

Yes I have DD on AN among others and does not irritate me or piss me off.I am simply waiting. Its a marathon not a sprint and if you think you can double your account every month this thread is not for you.

Let me state this to all new traders here.

1. Must watch Mark Douglas videos link 1st page
2. Must understand firmly concept of probability
3. Must trade low leverage and small positions by scaling in and out of positions
4. Best probability trades 61-100
5. Have exit plan before committing because in forex anything can happen!

Do all above I can assure you will have a solid equity building system.

What has come down to political left is deplorable Kathy Griffin holding Trump's head in blood in typical manner how ISIS beheaded thousands of victims. I am actually speechless! upset! Can't even describe how painful this is to most Americans! Parents of decapitated victims must be appalled and this moron insensitive a-hole doing what ISIS did and making a political statement? This woman should be ban from life from everything!

reloaded on NC targeting WP NU has has been overbought and I anticipate tomorrow might get sacked on NFP or even before
Not going to sell NU in case data comes out real bad. Prefer trading is talk of interest rate hike. Not going to guess the Fed's Pivots can be life changing. This is month after month since incorporating my style with davits pivots. He is a master at his craft and his words should be taken seriously. If you are not studying how to trade pivots like Davit then you are costing yourself money and that's why we are all here...to make money.

Davit keep doing what you are doing. This is one of the the very very few trading threads on FF that actually has substance. Have a great weekend traders. 🤙

NC is still fat pig and still great to short and hold.This is a set up not often happens and when it does I hummer hard.

Just an observation that trading small lots safeguards you on market manipulations.Market is played by dynamic traders to take your money.You ever wonder why after you take the loss price magically declines? Well every trend swing basically most cases end with spike that is after clearing all stops. By trading small you basically outsmart them and that's the key surviving in an environment that is determent to your existence. Point is to survive and thrive!

Hi guys after rather weak NFP I anticipate USD getting weaker.

UJ short? Nice one! 😎

Here is a nice article by Kathy Lien who I am fan of.

<https://www.fxstreet.com/analysis/nf...r-201706021949>

Friday's non-farm payroll report sealed the fate for the U.S. dollar. As hiring and wages eased in the month of May, investors scaled back their expectations for a Federal Reserve rate hike this month. Fed fund futures are no longer pricing in a 100% chance of a hike in June and the odds of 2 more hikes this year have fallen below 50%. The next 2 weeks is the "quiet period" before the FOMC meeting, so there won't be any comments from U.S. policymakers to bolster those expectations. For this reason, we expect the U.S. dollar to underperform over the next 8 days ahead of the June 14th FOMC meeting. U.S. data hasn't been great and even if the Fed hikes they won't provide any strong guidance on future tightening, which would be disappointing to dollar bulls. Yet U.S. policymakers haven't said anything to cast doubt on the market's rate hike expectations and for this reason we believe they will follow through with a quarter point increase this month. But the hike won't help the dollar unless the Fed suggests that more tightening is on the way which is unlikely given the lack of progress on tax cuts and fiscal spending - 2 things that are crucial to ongoing optimism from the Fed. With no major U.S. economic reports scheduled for release next week, traders should look for the U.S. dollar to underperform with USD/JPY likely to fall below 110.

Speaking of central bank meetings, the Reserve Bank of Australia and European Central Bank have monetary policy announcements. The RBA meets first so we'll start with that, as it will be an exceptionally busy week for AUD/USD traders. Aside from RBA, Q1 GDP, the trade balance and PMI services are also due for release along with China's trade balance and Caixin PMI reports. When the RBA last met, they failed to acknowledge the improvements in the economy and instead said its forecasts for Australia's economy has not changed much, causing the Australian dollar to spiral lower. Over the past month, labor market conditions and inflation weakened slightly while manufacturing and trade conditions deteriorated due to the slower Chinese export growth. Stocks, bonds and commodity prices also declined. Improvements were seen in retail sales, the housing market and business confidence but that won't be enough for the RBA to turn positive. So while AUD could hold its own versus the USD, it is likely to underperform other major currencies such as EUR and NZD. AUD/NZD in particular has been very weak and unless the RBA is surprisingly hawkish, the downtrend should remain intact.

The New Zealand dollar on the other hand closed in on a 3 month high thanks to the ongoing improvements in New Zealand's economy. Increases in the terms of trade and activity indices helped to bolster business confidence in the month of May. Comments from RBNZ Governor Wheeler this past week were relatively benign with the central bank head noting that house price growth has slowed and the risks to the financial system have fallen. With no major New Zealand economic reports scheduled for release next week beyond another dairy auction, the New Zealand dollar which is aiming for 72 cents should outperform its peers. USD/CAD rallied every day last week despite stronger GDP growth. Canada's economy grew by 0.5% in March, which was over 2x faster than forecast, bringing the year over year rate to 3.2% from 2.9%. The problem was that Q1 GDP growth accelerated less than anticipated and the current account deficit widened. Most importantly oil prices fell sharply after rejecting an attempt to rise back above $50 a barrel. Looking ahead, it will be another busy week for the loonie with IVEY PMI and employment report scheduled for release. Job growth was soft in April so a recovery could be seen in May. USD/CAD has major resistance between 1.3550 and 1.36 so oil probably needs to hit $45 a barrel for the pair to break above these levels.

The euro hit a 6 month high despite weaker than expected Eurozone data. According to the latest reports, economic confidence in the Eurozone, inflation and retail sales in Germany declined over the past month, a sign of the pressure created by a stronger euro. Since the last European Central Bank meeting late April, the EUR/USD rose more than 4 cents which is over 3.9%. For an export dependent economy like the Eurozone and a central bank that is worried about low inflation, the stronger currency can be a major deterrent to future economic activity. However since the last meeting, we've seen widespread improvements in the Eurozone economy. Aside from the latest decline in retail sales and German consumer price growth, Eurozone consumer spending is up, labor market conditions improved with economic activity accelerating across the board. Even ECB President Draghi acknowledged the improvements in the economy although he was adamant about the need for accommodative policy. So it will be interesting to see which way he leans because the next round of data could be much weaker given the rise in the currency.

Politics has and will continue to play a big role in the performance of sterling in the coming week. Although GBP/USD ended the week slightly higher than where it started because of the softer U.S. labor market report, it did not enjoy the same gains as it peers because of election uncertainty. Prime Minister May's party now leads the opposition party by only 5 points down from 15 two weeks ago. What once appeared to be a sure win could turn into a victory by only a small margin or worse a surprise loss. The June 8 election is suppose to be a tactic that would increase her negotiating hand but a failure to win with a strong majority would weaken her stance as Brexit talks begin. Although U.K. PMI numbers are scheduled for release along with industrial production and the trade balance politics are likely to play a larger role in the currency's performance than economics. If the day to day polls leading up to Thursday's vote show a shrinking majority for PM May, GBP/USD will fall. However if her party climbs in the polls near the end, GBP will recover smartly - either way it will be a big week for the British pound.

Hi Davit, This was my first week trading your system and I liked it a lot. Eight trades: seven wins and one loss with 1.2 % profit (I had too many early exits). I have 18 months learning to trade and continue to learn every day. I watched Mark Douglas classes (part 1 and 2 are not uploading), read 200 pages of the 305 PDF of Harmonic Trading Techniques and read the first 30 pages of this forum. After my first week experience with the system, I have some questions that I would like you to help me : 1- As Mark Douglas says you need to have a system...

You have lot of questions and I will try answer. 1st off you have to place less importance on indicators and more importance where price is in terms of pivots and price action and fundamentals.

1. - TDI RT Clone : Excellent indicator uau ! How do you use the 32 and 50 levels in your decision process?

Means little I don't pay attention to it. No trading decision of mine is based on it.

2. TMS Angleator - The first line of the indicator says : TDI W avg angle 13 degrees green 47 degrees Red 0 degrees . Where can I find the interpretation of all this angles . How do you use them in your decision process . What is the Red line mentioned ? 2.2.2 - The second line says TDI separation good (1.9 ) - How do you use this info in your decision process ? 2.2.3

Dismiss all these not important. None effect my trading decisions.

2.2.4- Dots - How do you use this info in your decision process ? If you are referring dots as the line for daily open then that creates a bias. Below bear above Bull

2.2.5 - Colored squares- I found out in a TMS forum where some of you participate the meaning of the colors. How do you use this info in your decision process ? I don't use color squares as my template only when I like to draw attention to Support and resistance levels.

2.2.7 - News events - Do you have a rule like never trade one hour before or after major news? How do you use the indicator ?
News indicators is for you to know what's going on.I have traded many time during news so its not a rule not trading however it depends on importance.Rate decision on USD and you are selling USD? and Feds announce increase? then you are doomed.Smart would of not trade yes hour before even day before on all USD.

3- Price action :

3.1 - Really great to learn about Harmonic trading . I saw in many of your post that you use it but you could not share it because it was a system that you purchased . Could you please share where you bought it or refer me to a system that you trust to design the harmonic figures?

Click on clipboard all indicators there including mine

3.2 -Can you refer me to an indicator that can recognize bullish and bearish price bars like hammer, doji , etc . and will mark them in the chart ?

If you can't understand simple Japanese candles then you should not be trading!STOP you indicator mindset think yourself!

3.Arrows - In some examples you justify taking a long trade because all arrows were aligned in the same direction with the exception of the daily arrow that showed a short signal. I thought that this was therule ,but I saw other trade that you started a trade with a different rule for the arrows. What is the ideal situation of the arrows that you are looking for ? Probably if all arrows are aligned you maybe late to start a trade

Arrows is quick way to see price action on different time zones. If H1 H4 D is red but 15 30 green and price is at 100S then good chance trend is reversing or has high probability to reverse so buying makes sense even though higher TF is red however same situation if price is at 38S then I won't buy because price is not in the zone and higher TF arrows are red and most likely bear trend will continue.

So trading is discretionary you must look at where price is.

4.ADR - I usually use it as a go /no go and if ADR is above 120 I do not trade. Could you please clarify how the ADR of the past helps in the decision making ?

You are missing the context ADR relevancy is pairs daily range.IF example a pair travels 100pips last 20days and after news went 150pips south then I would not recommend to sell since it already maxed out on daily range.There are exceptions when serious fundemetal news announcements like interest rate policy change GDP oil plummet oil extreme appreciation etc.

Finally like to say that Trading is an ART not a science hence I have seen great engineers math kids economists fail at this and mostly because they fail to understand the trading environment.Its a discretionary activity which you play huge part..

You might take a loss of 100pips and I may stay 20 more pips then price rebounds and I collect 500pips same trade different results.Opposite I may take a loss at 50pips and you might stay for -2500 pips on same trade.Why different results? Experience and personality traits.Not everyone can trade.

Good luck

Hi Davit, Thank you very much for taking the time and patience to answer to my questions. It was very good and made me think a lot . Just a couple of questions to have a clear picture of the system: 1- ADR . I got your point and it is clear how to use it. I just want to check if I understand what the indicator says . On Friday when the market closed, the NU chart showed ADR = 156 % , today 89 , 1Day 31, 5 Day 53 , 10 day 57 , 20 day 57 . This means that price moved 89 pips on Friday, 31 pips on Thursday, the daily average of the last 5 days was...

I already said harmonic indicator is on clipboard.Please read carefully.Please delete the ADR from your chart.It seems it confuses you a lot.Its a simple concept.

Lot of your questions can be found on google example ADR <https://www.jarattdavis.com/average-daily-range-2/> with video among many on internet. sorry I just don't have lot of time.

regards

{quote} Davit, Please advise, you are certainly qualified.. I have made money in FX but I have also lost money, I've never been able to consistently make money in currencies. What has drawn me to this thread is consistency. Consistency is my desire. I won't ramble about my experience, but I have been involved in many groups, programs, live trading teams etc..... Gave them all up several years ago and starting making money more regular without outside influence, however I'd make some money for several months and be able to take some profits but then...

Idea to me is to trade like a bank. What do Banks have? Lot more equity so by reducing your lots you are increasing your equity in terms of margin and DD hence when previously you bailed out say at -50pips now you can comfortably have -300pip SL hence increase your winning rate and coupled with pivots as road map it allows fast equity gain because your losses are minimized and your edge maximized.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Here is another illustration of how the self-image operates. Picture us living inside two boxes. The line farthest out, the solid line, represents real or realistic limits. The dotted line, in the first drawing shown tightly confining Self, represents self-imposed limits. The area between the two is your area or range of under-utilized potential. As you discover the means of strengthening and liberating your self-image, you move the dotted line closer to the solid line, permitting greater use of your true potential.

you are wrong.When you place trades at 61-100 you have more then 50-50

If it were 50-50 I would of lost my account long time ago instead I have been building it at around80% winning rate and less then 5% dd I would of not even bothered starting this thread with 50/50 ratio.You should seriously study this thread and demo trade

I did study and do demo trade....hmmm, but assign 90% or 80% chance for the trade in Forex to go in our favor, still a bit mystifies me, but lets keep on going and hopefully I can get to that point of comfortably.....

you have to take consideration series of trades.

100 trades at 61-100 zone roughly 80% winning rate.Now we don't know exactly which is the loser and you are alluding to it however he took a chance and happened to be a winner.He after all had the Edge on his side.

Hi Bryan

Its a good set up however watch PA might go through 100R

Since you are already long AN then why bother selling NU? You are basically already selling NZD and adding NU shorts only doubles your exposure to NZD

EA dropping nicely 🤔💰

Oil plummeted today after Crude Oil Inventories which pushed UC and all CAD pairs to higher levels.

Well it happens all I did was to add more on AC and wait. Should it get out of control I will reduce positions by 25% then wait.

As Mark Douglas said "anything can happen"

You got to think in bigger scale. When you are looking at the large painting you naturally step back to see the whole thing you don't put your face on the detail and expect to see it as a whole. I trade like I paint. ART and Trading are similar. Trade quarters!

{quote} Davit , thank God for you and Mark Douglas !!! Due to the changes I HAD TO MAKE in my mental approach to trading , particularly regarding PATIENCE , I easily survived the market upheaval yesterday in the Forex Market due to the drop in the price of oil. Pivot points , scaling in and out with lot sizes , account management , and PATIENCE all turned from a DD to a very large profit this morning. To ALL NEW SUBSCRIBERS TO THIS THREAD , and I was new to this thread a few short months ago , READ EVERY PAGE OF THIS THREAD , LOOK AND THINK ABOUT...

Thanks for great post! I am glad that this thread changed you for better. Its really interesting that same here 4yrs ago I would of shit my pants and taken the losses and now relaxed tackling what the market throws at me.
Trading small is the key. Keep it up.Lets see if your Canadian friend Poloz is little more happier then last time.

Survived the EG spike and added few more on very top. Its fine now.
Have been scalping in and out of NU shorts which is not worth posting.
Got AC in nice running gear. Going to let this baby run to next week which should continue down path.

AUS/NZD I don't understand why Aussie is strong in almost every market but Kiwi. I understand the pair trades mostly on local economics, just wish I understood it better.

carry over value. NZD interest rate is higher and seems "safer" place to park funds under present none threatening fundamentals.

I think you should not draw trend lines. Should not make that influence your decisions. Almost all forex retail traders draw trend lines and very few are profitable but they still continue drawing lines...

We should watch reaction on WP if it goes through or bounces back down.

i will close all my EURCAD positions before the end of the day. This week-end there are 1st round of legislative elections here in France , we're not like the brits and i'm pretty convinced that Macron movement will have the majority, so i expect a little upper gap for EUR. + Davit : i would like to know your expectations for EG, i know it's an confusing situation but just want to know your opinion. thanks EG can be stubborn. I held it after Brexit spike for 3 months I think. I don't think it will take that long to reach 85. Italian Election and Greece issues will weaken the Euro.

ECB desperately wants weak Euro to continue stimulating the economy hence bond buying but recent numbers are not very good and its attributed to rising Euro and if it continues to rise ECB may take

Anyway I am not worried. Looking at the chart this looks like correction cycles going down after peak of yesterday

Keep in mind that I firmly believe in managing trades if I think EG reached a level that I don't feel comfortable I will cut 25% of positions. To me trading is a probability game. Wins some and lose some and moving on.

Great article again by Kathy Lien for next week preparation. http://www.bkassetmanagement.com/fea...r-dollar\_10967

She seems little too negative about GBP and it remains to be seen how things unfold. Sometimes events have unexpected outcomes that is hard forecasting

I also believe Feds will not raise rates in June but she think they will... Data has been soft on US economy and I don't think rates will change in June.

If anything Yellen has been very cautionary throughout her leadership.

Hi Davit, Do you often use Market sentiment to filter your decision in your system? Thanks.

yes example leading up to Feds this week weds should be bullish for USD up to that decision on rates.

So I won't sell USD!! Example I won't buy NU AU EU or GU but likely to sell specially NU

You can call it sentiment but I prefer it being on right side with fundamentals and that changes week to week

Its really interesting that people who are ready for this thread they get it start making money from get go and others have pile of questions and feel entitled for answers.

Does not take long to see who these individuals are! If someone applied this system demonstrated trades and had a valid question then I would be more then willing to help and answer but I am not going to waste time on time wasters

I have been trading for circa 5 years....the only and main psychological barrier I face is letting winners run.....getting out too early with little profit..... I am relatively new to Davit's strategy, mainly pivot points....i have a great deal of experience with price action and harmonic patterns Today I took EURNZD short at the WPP....TDI crossed over.....there was some structure to the left.....the trade started to move in my favour and again I found myself getting out early. The only reason being that I didnt have the experience with trading...

Hi friend

Try splitting your account 1 with quick profits and 2nd hold trades. These way you can qualitatively measure the difference Think in swings.

For inspiration read Sniperdebt's posts. He is the master of holding.

{quote} Absolutely agree. There is only a loss when you close positions I am still in DD AN and EG but I do not consider them a loss until I choose to close them in DD. That is the beauty of small positions I have 22 orders in total on these pair Will add more when the PA changes in my favor. AN is under valued in my opinion so I will hold this one for months if I have too EG is a bit of a worry with the political situation in UK so I will monitor this one closely.

EG will turn soon very soon.Might see 85 by the end of the month you should not worry.Worst right after Brexit vote shot 91 that's right after.Now its just technical retrace but has no fundamentals behind despite what you read.
Pound will regain strength again

Good morning guys
Nice little drop on EG and NC still holding very large positions on both. NZD should crack soon but she is resilient Weds should be fun Feds on rates. Judging by the price action so far market is not convinced of rate hike otherwise USD bulls would of started their drive but anything can happen!

Hi Alex

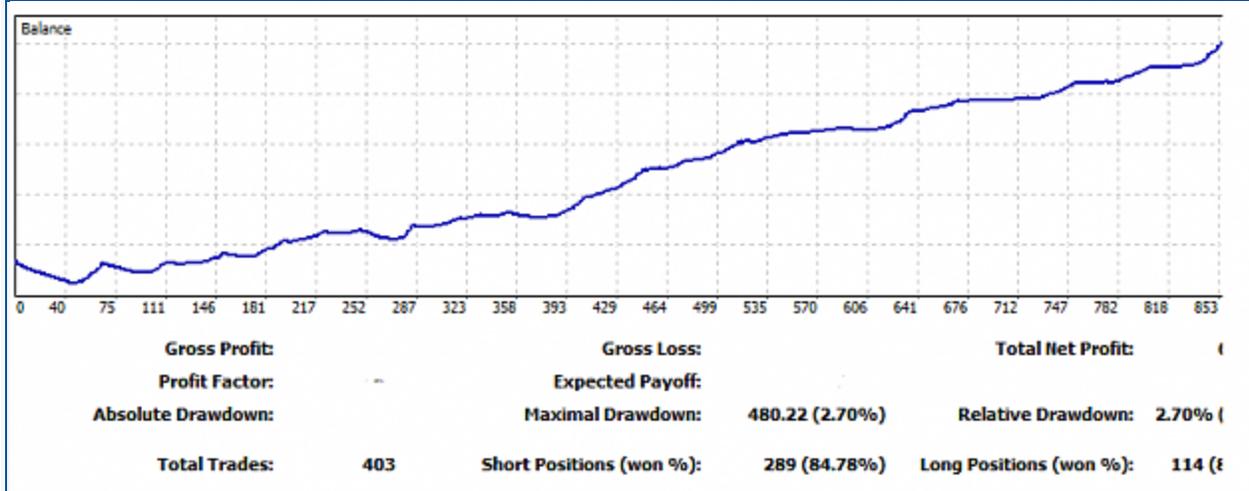

Welcome! Its nice having experienced trader like you here. I try to keep this method consistent and on track and prove is page 1 template is same as last page here no added indicators or pile of "improvements" that typically kills threads like TMS where beginning has no relation to what is being traded now. My goal is rabid equity building and I think based on my equity curve I have been successful.

Regards and looking forward for your trades.

There is a fundemetal shift here Not selling the CAD which means no long UC

Dbf bottom but could drop to 1.30

This is just my opinion but you do have pivots on your favor. Personally not taking this trade.

NC on profits Closed 1/4 of the trade total (+270 pips), monitoring the remaining ones following PA. CAD is bullish and apparently BOC wants it even more strong. {image}

Good Job

I am holding all to 94

Here is a situation where we have a fundemetal shift BOC signalling possible rate hike and interestingly we had this discussion how identify a trend. Most identify after the fact but best when you can ride it from the top. I think NC is trending lower and IMO will continue.

Tomorrow should be a very , very interesting day. Will we see a blazing return to S38@1.3433 or will it occur within the next 7 to 14 days. Multitude of positions , LONG with TP @ 1.3400 "Anything can happen" "Every moment in the market is unique" I feel comfortable with the positions I have taken. "green pips to all" GreenEarth

Not trying to dissuade you from positions you already committed but aren't you sort of gambling?

Lets assume there is good probability rates stay the same and USD continues to fall and when that happens you can be sure moves will be fast and before you have a chance to get out you could be in deep hole.And if you set your SL too close you can bet spikes that often occur on important days like tomorrow will take you out even if after price goes in your intended direction.

Best course of action is no action wait for results then we can attack the new opportunities after.

cheers

Davit and all - is there a book/s on Macroeconomics that you could suggest?

Honestly Forex is a wild animal. You can have positive news and pair moving down or opposite negative news and pair appreciating.

Its what Dynamic traders do and system is designed to take your money. Why I trade small.

Watch pivots best source you need.

Example had you read macroeconomics on NZ you might of concluded no way NU should be 73 but it did get there or EU at 1275 but its here. Forces that move price in Forex have their own ballgame and our job is to go along with them.

There is no weak or strong dollar policy. USD value is depended on Economics and world economies.

Feds don't lead they follow data. Data usually always in the past. I have already stated that in Forex things happen contrary to what you expect. This is why you can have doctorate degree on economics and still fail as a trader.

I am getting little annoyed do people watch PIVOTS? ok lets focus on it.

Davit's Fundamental-Technical Posts since beginning Pivot Trading

Update: Sunday, January 14, 2018

1st lets establish 1 fact. NU has no big trend. Its been ranging since 2016 April 2nd every swing reaches climax and turns and this happens almost independent of fundamentals. The old age of buy low sell high applies. 6815 was simply attractive low number to buy=value for investors.Same could be said selling at 73 is attractive for bears.
Pivots points help us determine those turning zones. Simple lets not complicate.

{quote} Hi, Congrats on this beautiful trade. Besides, i would like to ask please if you based your multiple positions entries on pivots or reactions to pivots levels on lower timeframe? I'm wondering because i've never had a trade with more than 3 positions. Anyway, it's awesome to see that with the pivot + TDI system, we can trade with consistency almost all the time. Best, JT

If your position size is .05 then you could trade 2x 03 gets 06 slightly more but allows 2 positions instead of 1 so your 3 positions could become 6 allowing better entries.

When in DD reduce positions not increase the lots which is very common in martingale. When I am in DD I reduce the size even smaller.

Hi Davit - Haven't posted for a while but still a big fan of what you and others are doing on this thread have taught me. Have travelled a lot this year in China and Europe so have traded when I could. Back home again in Ausie again and just recorded my best trade as a pivoteer on the EURCAD. Closed the trade at the 78 level while in hospital having an operation but could have done better. Account up nearly 10% for this month so can't complain. The pivots, small entries, time and patience combined have done the trick for me. Thanks again to...

Welcome back! I hoped the surgery was minor! I know how it feels in hospitals. Nice result 10% gain in 2 weeks is some people's result in a YEAR

Keep going 🍀 🍀 🍀 🍀 🍀 🍀

Its funny but I get the feeling someone is going to copy everything here and sell on it Ebay with different colors and names. Happens I've seen it.

Ohh well I hope it stays under the radar

I think it takes more than just pivots to be successful....Pivots are not new Jesse Livermore I believe invented or 1st real trader traded and that's in 1920's back then it was a long price tape and he would spend endless nights calculating and establishing S/R and Pivots.

You guys should read the book REMINISCENCES OF A STOCK OPERATOR its on my profile

Sniperdebt here reminds me of Jesse Livermore. He stays on trades for weeks but his results blows everything. Jesse same he would keep adding to gains and very quickly in short months take 10k to 100k and that's in 1920's. JL is an inspiration and another trader I love is Richard Donchian my countryman an American Armenian. He revolutionized trend trading and Banks now basically trade his system. Turtle trading is based on Donchian system.

Why I dislike spoon feeders.

Self-sufficient: don't need as much sympathy or reassurance, but they still need to form networks so self-sufficiency need not be taken to extremes.

When people post a trade here and ask "was my entries good?" it's total let down because this person obviously did not read much here and obviously has no balls to be a trader. You got to love risk and feel confident taking it even if it turns out a loser. It's part of the game!

If you don't want to be burned then don't become a cook 😊

Risk takers: more comfortable taking it.

Change seekers: like novel approaches. This is different than 99% of all other people.

Hi Guys

When trading the Yen crosses you must look how UJ is doing.

If UJ continues to go up you can bet AJ same.

UJ is at 61R at 111.11 but has more room to go up and should this occur 85 AJ is likely.

BOJ press conference in 5 min. We could see sharp moves on Yen

Just a reminder don't force trades. I had phenomenal June so far and have no need to force trades.If you can't pick good set ups then wait for it.

This is natural in nature.When predators think prey is too far they don't go wasting energy chasing 1st they try to get real close to increase the chance.

Same in trading we are trying to hunt best set ups.Premature trades will hold margin that could be used for better profitable trades

Going over next week should be positive for AUD and the Pound

Sun or Monday if you are in Australia

RBA Gov Lowe Speaks

Tues

BOE Gov Carney Speaks

FOMC Member Fischer Speaks (he could provide bullish sentiment on USD)

Weds

RBNZ Rate Statement (might get sold off after rates staying the same heavily)

Thurs

Cad Core Retail Sales m/m (If positive could help NC break 95 wall)

Friday

CAD CPI m/m

looks like focus is shifting on commodity pairs next week AUD NZD CAD and their crosses.

This is way overdue for correction and coming down nicely.

I am always fascinated how the chart somehow is ahead of policy. As you can tell obviously NU has overachieved whatever factors that pushed to 73 and now no matter what news this is heading down IMO Why? 73 too expensive for NZD and raising rates will destroy good progress they have made in economy. So down we go 72? Yes very possible and lower

In NU again. Feels like rinse and repeat from last week, very similar setups with EURGBP and NZDUSD. However, I'm trading lightly with GBP with all the silly politics going on at the moment. As MD said "Anything can happen"... {image}

EG is going down to 85 then lower still. Does not matter what politicians say. Its a correction and it will correct. Its a matter of time could take 1 week or 2 months.

you are probably thinking 38S will hold (yellow box I drew) Well it might but we are not gambling! We trade with the Edge on our side to increase winning probability however long EU now is not this system's Edge.

Took CADCHF short based on PA at R38 and resistance on the daily chart {image} {image}

I just want to make sure you know about high correlation with EC
EC is cheaper to trade! and at the moment looks like is in support.

only time is worth trading CHF is against the Euro otherwise just trade Euro crosses

Good morning guys

I resisted taking profit on NU at 7207 thinking after rate might plunge down but didn't. Well it happens and that's why trading can be challenging. EC I thought may not drop below 49 and it did same on EA so NU I thought lets not make that mistake again well result is missed taking over 500pips in profit.

I am not discouraged just needs little time. If I have to cut my losses on NU I will but far from that point.

new faces 🙌🏍️🍀 good luck

I am looking at AN Monthly chart and i see that we might go all the way to the low at parity. I was long building my positions but exited at around 1.0470 as it looked like we were in a corrective structure and heading down again. I think next week or in 2 weeks with pivots updated we will have good entry points at one of the resistance ones. Hope we dont go that low but you never know and should be prepared for anything. {image}

Hi Realfan

You have the wrong mindset. You should have not exited at 1047. I have long positions from 1060!! still confident about it.

We are not looking at monthly charts we trade swings!! This is critical to understand.

Anyway don't have the energy to tackle your post in much more detail but suffice to say it does not represent this system.

Last week someone panicked and took a loss on AN at 1047
This person clearly was panicking and scared himself thinking monthly candle heading parity etc. Interesting that huge part was missing was fundamentals how AN was supposed to drop to parity based on what? Nothing about that....similar posts were made about EU parity people scaring themselves to losses. One of the reasons why I don't post at EU thread....too many panic "traders"
Guys have confidence in this system you will pile pips left and right just trade small and space out your entries at key zones. Simple

good morning guys

NU spiked due to negative data earlier. Still short on this since I think 7322 61R likely to be hit to clear stops and then we might see real correction take place.

Worth looking

Disclaimer: I am not long NZDUSD To those of you short NU, ALWAYS keep in mind that any pair may not retrace to your liking in the short term. As you build your positions Davit-style, do not forget how much risk you are putting on the table. I say this because I fell victim to building these massive baskets of trades WITHOUT really caring about drawdown relative to my account size, which is ultimately a recipe for disaster. It seems like common sense, until you find yourself risking a significant portion of your account when awaiting a retrace....

Hi Chantun

What's you are advising is sound advise to those who trade recklessly without stops.

My system does have stops and I covered this subject over dozen times.Yes building large position and hoping for retrace without cut out point is receipt for disaster and I don't advocate.

What you are assuming and many here who just read few pages here get the impression that's what is taking place and that's the fault of these individuals not the system of ignoring to read the thread. Good luck with TMS and Emmanuel and I see where you got your inspiration 🤔

You are removed from here and I can see you will be lot more comfortable with TMS and its pseudo leader.

8th day holding trade now is going gain

trading is most part waiting game

You got to think in bigger scale. When you are looking at the large painting you naturally step back to see the whole thing you don't put your face on the detail and expect to see it as a whole. I trade like I paint. ART and Trading are similar. Trade quarters!

This is critical to get!Pivots are psychological measurements which is mysterious even to describe but its there and in nature,galaxies, in corn,leafs,fly wings, lava flow, human behavior,Greek architecture,pyramid building etc list goes on.

Dear Davit, et. al.:

Allow me to briefly introduce myself to your excellent and very successful FF Thread:

I am an retired physician and aspiring professional Forex trader since 2004 - but lost a great deal of money, basically gambling. I have been following you Davit on-and-off for approx. 2 years, on your excellent super-successful FF Thread and convinced that your universal comic Forex philosophy jives with mine! As a result of admiration for your expertise and successful approach, I went ahead and opened a live account again and wish to focus on trying to model after you, and the many successful students that you have trained here! I also hope to be able to post trades here in the future and possibly add value like the others!

All the Best to you and the others!

Hi DrForexMD

We all have lost money in the beginning. Price of tuition. What I share here is in my opinion sound way to trade. No panics, No overtrading and clear areas to get in.

Not going to change my template every day and and have not added more indicators. My 1st page template is still the same. Can't say same on other systems specially TMS where things change daily! and one does not know what to follow and what to do since big E passed away that thread unfortunately has been hijacked by an individual who disregards what big E represented.

I ban lazy individuals and people who can't follow instruction.

Post your trades and relax we are good people here 🍀

hey guys what's think usdcad entry long? {image}

I don't think you have sufficient experience and proper mindset to be on this thread.

I am removing you from here. I can't with clear conscious let you trade here and accumulate losses. There is a huge gap where you are now and what this thread is about.

green journey

To all others

This thread is not beginning trading. It requires experience and its on my 1st page! This is a thread where experience traders with proper mindset set out trading successfully and while it might look easy I can assure you its not. I can clearly notice people who watched and read the material here and have experience and others who think short cuts are way to success. Not on this thread!

This is a life drawing class and if you still drawing stick figures you are not in the right place! Try drawing an apple 1st! Everything has a proper progress and you can't rush it. While this may sound harsh its the truth. If you are just learning to ride a motorcycle you start with 250-300CC bike not 600-1000CC bike that would most likely kill you. This is my honest approach and I think its better I state openly what my expectations are then allowing you to lose money while you are not ready for this.

Cheers

Some say to avoid the Asian Open, while focusing mainly on the LO and NYO, especially the overlap, where the action takes place, However, I am simply a TDI-Pivot student, and noted this nice active Bullish BO off WP with the TDI confluence! I believe there may be an edge to capture some Pips !

Hello DrForexMD,

You are certainly most exception here because most of them only post after they have won hundred or thousand pips.

Thanks for your insight.

I think the Forex gods have spoken...EU may be finally be going down? I am not sure, as I am a mere mortal to the giant Market Makers. Even the Boss exclaimed today: "WTF".

Well, I went and took a short-position tonight as shown below after placing more money in my micro account, then being conservative using only TP-5 Pips, but with 0.02 to 0.03 lots - I for one, want to also "Stay Green !":

Hi AstroStudent:

I believe it is the strategy-method-technique that matters first, than the fear of losing money if you do your homework with money management. The money I use here I usually throw away on ungrateful young ex-girlfriends (LOL) - there are no real government controlled Geisha girls here that are legal for old retired professional gentlemen (like me).

For your convenience, here are materials the Davit (and his mentors) have shared with FF community - Great Stuff ! Be Blessed !

Finally, The Boss here noted in an earlier post today, to watch the UC as it was very hopeful trade in the near future. Well, I did feel. IMHO, and thought, this pair is ready to begin becoming Bullish as the Bears appear to have become exhausted in the Near-Term Support Zone with pretty good TDI (opposite of the EU - please see above):

{quote} Hello DrForexMD, You are certainly most exception here because most of them only post after they have won hundred or thousand pips. Thanks for your insight.

you are obviously not read enough of this thread! I posted just about every trade I took however this is not signal service thread and frankly your comment is totally disingenuous!

I can't have idiots here! you are removed! I will keep cleaning this place up so we can have focus on this method and principles. I wished there was better way to do it but as of now its the only tool I have.

Here is my opinion about trading in general.

Its fine posting set ups as I do often but I prefer you don't post your entries then feel pressure that since you posted your trade now it must show profit or you may not cut the loss feeling the pressure to deliver a winner! This is totally wrong way to approach my system. There is a random distribution of winners and losers and you are in control of managing your trades! No obligation to share since if you follow the rules of this system same trade should be obvious to others as well. I hope its clear on this.

Same reason why I don't have TE. I don't like the pressure that I must deliver because general public is looking. I actually perform better when decisions I make are strictly mine and not influenced By TE or trading forum. Trading psychology should be free from external negative inputs. You own your trades hence own nothing to anyone!

{quote} I liked the GDP number going into NFP next week. It reinforces the near term rate rise and i think that is more important than tapering rumors.

I think USD weakness is based on lot of mico economic weak gains but most importantly FEDs hinted no more hike until end of the Year and even then may not. So Fed's projected 4 hikes this year may not materialize hence USD weakness.

After some time of lurking around I got say that this got to be the most pathetic system ever. Seriously how blind can you people be? This is just a double down strategy in disguise. The reason for this to be working thus far is because current market conditions is range bound so price typically doesn't trend for extended periods of time. When you buy at your little S78 or whatever crap and goes against you and your "pivot" indicator repaints the following week a new S78 low to buy from you are just basically waiting for a turn around. I seen systems...

could not respond earlier was at work! Everything you regurgitated here is false. You asked why I ban people here well you are a perfect example of an idiot that could have benefited but failed to grasp even the basics what's transpiring here. I remove people like you so we can have peace and focus on making money! Yes moron that's what I have been doing on this thread from day 1!!
Sad part is you could of been.... but you know it deep down you are a fking loser and you will never make it as a trader because you have the wrong attitude and intellect. Not everyone is meant to trade suffice to say you might find something worth doing in your life!

you are unceremoniously banned from here and trading in general! Find something else to do!

{quote} Thank you Davit. Not in position to post the chart now... but started shorting from 7180 (current S78 level). Very annoying pair trading with very narrow ADR

I would not worry too much on this. We should see 7250 sometime next 2 weeks and for you to get out.

In general you should always have cut out point.
