Hi guys
Very tough week.USD strength is unmistakable.More of the same maybe in the cards until DEc 20 Feds rate date.Market may continue pricing in the rate weather happens or not.
Lot can happen and extreme prices are not overruled.Canadian dollar is still getting hammered by weak crude and China trade issues which reduce global oil demand.What is perplexing is NZD strength it has become the "new" Safe heaven beating the usual YEN
Little NZD is unshakable right now....We will see how it goes

My monthly gain was 9.5% but my DD increased so its a mix bag.WE manage our trades and we do what must be done.

Today was the inauguration of the President of Mexico Andres Manuel Lopez Obrador. I had always mentioned he would be good for Mexico and his speech today was one for the History books. He stood by change in Mexico, the elimination of corrupt politics and being a government of and for the people. Among some of the changes were:

*Eliminating perks for high ranking officials including their private jet travels and all other travels paid by the people, pensions for retired officials to include the former presidents and all excessive pays.

File 33 - Davit's Posts and et. al. on his Pivot Trading thread-2018-12 Pages - 184

*Starting Monday the Presidential plane, all public official helicopters and fleet will be up for sale...if anyone is interested in purchasing one...🙄

*He will only pay himself 40% of what the previous president earned.

*He will not live in the "Presidential house" called Los Pinos and will transform it along with the park where it sits called Chapultepec into a public art and cultural institution. Google these and you will see the magnificence of this park which is larger than Central Park in NY and which even has a castle in it.

*Within 3 years there will be free medical and medication assistance. (Much needed here).

*Raising wages, reducing the price of gasoline (big issue in Mex since it is a huge oil producing country and there exists other issues involving the oil industry) reducing taxes and reducing drastically the wages for top officials to pay for all these changes.

*Elderly, those with different abilities will have their benefits doubled. The young will be able to have paid internships to promote growth.

*Past officials involved in corruption will be forgiven; however, from now on those officials caught in corruption will be punished even if it includes members of his family. (In the past officials used their families to carry out these acts).

*They will refurbish old oil refineries and build a new one. It is not well known but Mexico has enough oil to be self sustained and sell to other countries...this is one of the main reasons I post this news here since sooner or later it will have an effect on a global scale.

*He will work with Us and Canada for the approval of USMCA.

...and many more.

If you have the opportunity to listen to his speech do so. For those of us who have a better understanding of this country and can find the hidden messages found in his words will see how this is the dawn of something big. Mexico can and might become a major power in the world economically and politically. Mexico has been kept hidden and is more like a sleeping giant. For those of us interested in making a career out of Forex should take notice.

Mexico is at the point of break right now, either becomes more united and starts working with the rest of North America to shadow the EU or else it goes down the drain following Venezuela.

2 things that worry me about Obrador are his exaltation of poverty and his attempt to be friends with Maduro like WTF? nothing wrong with cutting excessive expenditure and all that but I hope he doesn't go towards exaltation of poverty further, as that's how he got the majority of votes, by targeting poor people(majority of Mexicans) with promises.

Russia wasn't involved in the 2018 Mexico election (at least not explicitly) but Victory Labs (google it) was involved. Much like Russia was in USA elections.

Trump is a magnate and a great leader, would never honor poverty.
Obrador is not a business man and feels honored to live with a tight budget.
hope this doesn't have a negative effect. Maybe Obradors 6 years in office will level Mexico up (repair) and allow it to grow wealthy for next 6 years, not with Obrador in office though. 6 years is too short of a period.

IMO

I'd rather prefer them to say something like " Look,I did this and that and all that,look and what i did do you like it? " instead of "I will do this and that bla bla bla" .

all this regarding those politic guys out there who always come as usual with big mouth when they get in power,then with time their face kinda change,and you will be like wtf! i didnt voted this face 😂 but as well i am not sure political talks will be welcome here as we all have way different views on many many things about Russia ,US or others ,and we will end up in one useless polemics.

but heck if Davit allows it then my bad,and you guys can go on with.

cheer up

I agree with majority of your points. there are a few things I would like to mention.

Why worry about the Maduro situation when Mexico is a huge friend of Cuba, I see Mexico as a friend of all and a judge of none. People give Russia too much credit even if they did mingle. Sure they are not the only ones.

His concern with the poor is well founded. The fact is we have been desensitized by the way things have been with the common people. It is strange that being for the poor and not ignoring the people that voted you in is an issue. I see his idea of "exalting" the poor as you call it, as building a middle class that does not exist in this country since the gap between the higher up and the people is enormous(which in essence is the definition of Third World Country). And yes it will take more than his 6 years, he even stated that people should be patient that it will take time because they were handed a broken country.

True. Best to hear it when all is done. But this is the way we can measure how he or any other politician is doing.

In his case he instituted a new way of measuring, Since the Presidents cannot run for re-election their 6yr term seem long for some. He said that after 2 1/2 yrs the people can decide if they want him to continue in office or not. Bold move and one that I think can guarantee that some major changes will take effect before then.

Mexico has enough resources to be a major influence in this world. I post about this not just for political reasons but because as a Trader I must follow all issues on a global scale. Remember Trumps beginning...how it affected the markets...one tweet was all that was needed.

Maybe this won't be a market mover...now...

Hi Friends,

I am worried that the new Mexican President elect may sound a little too radical towards government, I am sure others are worried about this as well.

See link about what happened to a very similar Mexican politician running for the Presidency who also dedicated in helping the poor and causing waves in 1994:

<https://www.history.com/this-day-in-...e-assassinated>

Hopefully, he will become accepted by most about him and keep good professional body guards for himself as well as his immediate family.

First there were dovish words on interest rates from Fed Chairman Jerome Powell that raised hopes a bottom might form around last month's low in the S&P 500. Now bulls are getting excited about a promise by the U.S. president and Chinese President Xi Jinping to put a temporary halt on new tariffs.

With a month left in the year, the S&P 500 is up 3.2 percent in 2018 and sits close to the midpoint of its annual range. Relative to earnings, the index trades at a multiple of about 19, cheaper than any time since early 2016.

Bullish signals from Buenos Aires went beyond tariffs. Xi said he would consider approving a possible $44 billion deal for Qualcomm Inc. to purchase NXP Semiconductors NV if it's brought to him again, the White House said in a statement. The canceled takeover was the highest-profile victim of the trade dispute between the world's two largest economies.

The market "is pricing some risk of further escalation in our view, and thus the absence of a negative G-20 outcome (i.e. agreement to just keep talking) could see the S&P 500 trade toward 2,800,"

Sterling will be vulnerable to swings on signs that lawmaker opposition to the deal is increasing or waning during debates that kick off on Dec. 4, ahead of a vote a week later.

There will always be an opposing view. No gov official is 100% perfect...but also people fear what they don't understand. What I am saying; however, is that I see this as the first chance for this country to change...some may not like it...but if it did happen Mex may start the process to becoming a powerful country. Granted that the people need to be on board...because gov can only do so much...the people have been on wrong path way too long.

But what I am focused on is the probability of a positive change that may influence the market in the future (because of the resources it has especially oil). He made a bold claim that MXN, which is currently above 20, will be at 17. The only way I see that if there is dollar weakness. MXN has no effect on dollar and at one point and even at times it is dependent on OIL and CAD movement (because of the oil). So if MXN does go to 17 without the influence of dollar then we may see Mex events move the market (a long shot). Mex import and export especially with US and CAN are huge, and US cannot afford to have a strong Mex.

Hey Davit,

I do not know if this may give some insights:

1. v20 has v20- +2 GMT - Live or based on the Helinski time zone
2. Apparently, the new v20 servers are faster according to Oanda
3. the AO is "0" on the daily_open_line
4. There is an IB on the Oanda Thread you can contact as well.

Whether this explains the new Margin, I do not know. But, I have talked with some very knowledgeable people at Oanda, however many are not, Maybe these folks can shed some light to this questions.

Should of done same on GU but aiming for home run was a mistake.There was great optimism for Brexit deal and I thought why not lets aim 36 then MP quits and snow ball effect and now back to square one.Can't fault myself under the context of holding it but greed in most cases does more damage then good.

Keep have to remind myself this is swing trading not annual home runs

Hi guys

As more you do the calendar events it becomes obvious why Pairs do what they do. Example EU is in a limbo waiting to hear Draghi speak AUD waiting for Rate statement and so on.

Need to plan your trades with this knowledge in mind

EC may test 1.50 again but don't think it has fundamentals to push higher now which may provide re short again

I cut some losses when it was like 100 pips against me but if I looked at monthly and weekly chart I could almost certainly say that market proved me wrong. Odds seem to be against me, there are better trades for taking than this one. {image}

I'm not rushing into it. NZD has been very stong lately and there's no guarantee it will turn even at r61. But we could see 100+ pips swing.

Hi Davit,

I'm still on it because I missed WS61 that is probably the right spot to close where you reaped your profit, because as you remember we are trading swings . 😊

Now I have to wait again-

100% agree on NZD, now is trading at extreme, so a time for a correction is more probable.

Best regards,

Hi guys As more you do the calendar events it becomes obvious why Pairs do what they do. Example EU is in a limbo waiting to hear Draghi speak AUD waiting for Rate statement and so on. Need to plan your trades with this knowledge in mind EC may test 1.50 again but don't think it has fundamentals to push higher now which may provide re short again

I just like how the market leaves clues on higher tf to then use on lower tf...

Same pattern from Daily used on M30. Happens often if you look for them...

As we broke the uptrend I will only look for shorts on this pair, waiting for PA around pivot.

From my trading experience UJ has a tendency to drop specially when fundamentals change.

Dec 20 is rate decision however it may plummet way earlier what I mean plummet I mean 200-400pips hence I just don't buy it meaning UJ but look to sell it short. Your trade could work out for sure but I just wont do it myself

CJ classic pivot entry with positive swap this is solid trade in fact I loaded up.Can it drop lower? Yes anything can happen in trading.We are dealing with X factors that are out of your control but if you take consistent trades like this you can easily hit 70-80% winners is first time i see in this mt4 type report the formula of withdraw " ... to bank account" ,that doesnt look ok there coming from a broker mt4 report. Not to mention that some brokers have withdraw option in demo as well,i guess not everyone know this until you experience few more brokers demo's.

Just a heads up for some newbies around who might not know yet how things may work in some other guys... backgrounds.

CAD is becoming more and more my bugbear.

Today BOC left overnight rate unchanged at 1.75% and this was largely expected nevertheless the loonie plunged hardly across the board.

This leave me with two trades that were going well in DD to manage, specially CJ in which maybe I'd better to wait this news release before entry. 😊

Tomorrow OPEC + Poloz speech could improve things a bit or even make it worse.

AN and EN Longs on deck. {image} {image}

Great to see someone knows the recipe to do this. 😊

I quit EN when lost quite some money a week ago, as the bullish move failed on daily TF.

File 33 - Davit's Posts and et. al. on his Pivot Trading thread-2018-12 Pages - 184

I had lovely TDI cross on daily together with broken bearish move (the red line).

The issue is that I draw the line when I wanted to have it, not where it should be. The correct one is the blue line.

So for me I am still bearish on EN until I see some decisive PA on daily and broken the blue line... 😊

I use these lines instead of listening to fundamentals, simply because I suck in reading fundamentals.

But apparently I suck also in drawing lines.

So please don't follow me, thanks.

Hi guys

All I can say stay patient. Lot can happen after OPEC meeting. Yes my trades are red and some moving back to right direction.

This reminded me about holidays when MM push price to extreme kind of similar end of the year pushing before dumping.

IMO Cad dumping was planned by MM and there was no real reason. Rate remaining the same was expected. Anyway market does what it does all we can do manage our trades.

I am staying tight today I do anticipate CAD gaining. CJ is still great opportunity to long price like this does not come often

There is no doubt that pivots work..Sometimes its easy to hit the order a little to soon, then have to manage more DD.. Some of the best advice that Davit shared here is choosing the right direction on pairs so that positive swap occurs. CJ buy is an opportunity to look forward to now for that very reason..

This is true sonseeker. One way the MM uses to offset your swap theory is to shift away from the zone and make people scream uncle. This is one reason why money management is critical using this strategy and experience is King!

Love pivots but PA is the king.
Blue is broken, red is broken, all pointing down.
Do I keep open my longs ? No, they are long gone.

Watching different zones now at 82.5 and 81...

CJ looks good so far and normally I would add more now.
Only I'm quite heavy CAD involved already due to my "excellent" UC short entry from yesterday... 😞

This patience thing is always an issue for me.
As I found my 3 weeks old analyze and it says 1.35 to be visited first.

So why I find myslef heavy short from 1.33 already? 😞

Oh my god fibo, you got to be kidding me. How you doing this. 😊
I was basically in the same long on S&P and my favorite H4 time-frame.

But I tried to "imitate" what you guys doing here in lower TF.
And as I did not like the PA and TDi cross down on M15 I got out.

Just to see this now on H4, so painful really...

Last week, the price did the same.

I touch the weekly trend line and it goes up again.

This week it fell again, it did not break the trend line it supported R61 and again it rises again, to see where it arrives.

The European Stock Exchanges have suffered a new setback due to the fear of an upsurge of the trade war between China and the United States. United after the arrest of the Huawei financial director in Canada; as well as the fear of a global recession and the rejection of the Brexit agreement.

So I don't post either because it doesn't follow your strict guidelines. Last June I tried to contribute and you ripped my head off. So I sit quietly, follow the thread. Cheers!

Asking people to use same indicators is reasonable request! If I let you use Murry math another bollinger bands another 10 different MA's, market profile, volume etc then what started as clear focused trading method becomes muddled to obscurity.

This will be your last post here by "all due respect" failing to understand even rudimentary logic here.

Wild week and wild day on Wall Street

I am glad I am not trading stocks! Constant drum beating of Feds is scaring the market and I wished we had Yelen's type she was lot more cautious. Powell is like a typical cold pencil pusher and seem out of touch with reality. There is absolutely no logic to hike more there is no inflation to speak about and economy is already showing signs of weakness. Big drop in manufacturing ordering, housing and lay off coming from car industry China trade issues are rattling the market.

Biggest event next week is ECB conference Thurs. Euro could get wings until Thurs and may crash after since Draghi has been pessimistic on Euro recovery specially that German and French data is slowing down

Anyway should be crazy race to Christmas

Something worth sharing

Thank's David but not really I was everywhere. In fact only in CAD pairs, which I don't really now. And S&P which I trade quite often.

The main reason why I got out from a good S&P set-up is that I was long. And I am super bearish about indexes.

And besides CAD heavy I was also Martini heavy. So I need to put also alcohol test in my trade evaluation check list lool. 😊

{quote} Well agree with you guys, only I would not call this a pain but rather as an opportunity. 😊 There are great swings up and down on S&P daily chart (or any other US index) and $$$ just waiting if you catch the swing right. I would also not feel any pain to short Dow Jones Industries all the way down to 13.500 = cut in half as during the previous crash in 2008. In my chart S&P I am watching just these two lines and price action around them. Closing a day below 2635 would mean a drop confirmation for me... {image}

I agree, great opportunities with these are ahead. I regularly trade these (intraday only) and the swings have been pretty wild.

Hello Ranilo,

My name is David and I am addicted to pivots, price action and TDI.

In your chart UC I could see you placed shorts around pivot followed by the drop from R100, so exactly where you should take profits already.

It is certainly a good idea to wait for the news events how they unfold, but entering this late means this entry was a low probability.

In one of my accounts I am still short UC since 6 weeks ago.

I basically come once a week to this chart how it's going, as I was expecting 1.355 to be hit before reversal.

Well looking this week and the long wick, it seems that's it for bulls and we will be moving south

Hello David,

Thanks for your input. But we all have different approach and views of the market. I know how to go around and use Davit's strategy well especially price locations around pivot..

Just like I said, I don't enter a trade before news no matter what the setup is. I don't risk anymore to guess and assume what news outcome would be. Coz I tried that before, sometimes market can be irrational. So, best approach still is Price Action. Just like what Davit said, Pivots are just roadmaps, you also don't take trades blindly using pivots location only.

I hope that is already clear.

Mean reversion has been a thing since the beginning my friend. A claim like this or any input would require a study of the probabilities over a given time period to show if the edge provided herein has changed over time... which I don't know if anyone on this thread has done. I would think its safe to say that the majority following here agree there is definitely an edge to trading fib pivots using this method.

That's true to all threads systems because people who fail often other then pivot or systems but much more to do with trading psychology.I mean stop loss and managing risk.

I like there is less people here rather have competent small group to trade with then thousands of incompetent time wasters.Pivots will always be here and they work because essentially all markets are Elliot Waves and swings are just waves.

Its not about MA's ,Biollinger Bands,Market Profile,Volume,Oscillators these are fallacies what I mean there are by product of the market past data but true market is independent of these indicators. Fibonacci pivots in my opinion comes closest to true market behavior which touches heart of it Elliot Waves.

Not sure why exactly are are you telling me this. Because I certainly know this and that's why I'm on this thread. 😊 [ /quote]

Actually voty I did not mean to send this message your way. A mistake on my part. The message was meant for a critic of this system. You have helped me and many other traders , many , many times. In fact , I follow you constantly.

Sorry for the error.

I truly dislike Asian session mindless gutless PA.Its very rare to see original direction on Asia session just like everything else copy cats to the core

China for instance has been stealing US and European technologies for decades and still do...Without impunity until Trump stepped in.Long overdue

"The United States Trade Representative, which led the seven-month investigation into China's intellectual property theft and made recommendations to the Trump administration, found that "Chinese theft of American IP currently costs between $225 billion and $600 billion annually."

<https://money.cnn.com/2018/03/23/tec...eft/index.html>

In the meanwhile just about anything made in China is garbage breaks and falls apart just like their hundreds of Ghost town buildings falling apart as early as 2nd year of build.Never understood the oxymoron concept of building mediocre buildings that nobody lives so you can show growth.Absurdity of this is staggering

Only in China

Hey Pivoters,

There seems to be congruencies with Crude and CAD dropping:

GBP weakening with Brexit losing favor again:

Losses are normal, as we all know well because we all take some. In your case, after so many winners it's even more normal. What gives the bad feeling more than the loss in itself is when we realize we have fallen victim of greed. I think greed is the worst enemy, bigger than fear, that with growing experience becomes more manageable and eventually fades.

Thanks Mundo and others. I am not emotional about taking the loss and that's part of trading. What it shows I manage my trades. That's all.

Yes I will recover no doubt as I often do. 👍🍺

You must have troops to fight on.

Because of thin liquidity moves are exaggerated and Feds looming date Dec 20 makes it worse. I believe serious deflation of USD once holidays are over and new year begins.

I believe Feds have overplayed their card Economy already showing cracks and if they push too fast too far you can expect meltdown of Wall Street and overall economy. Powell getting fired may also happen since this clown has been too hawkish without substance

What do you fellow traders think about the down grading of the news in this case? Taking into account the fact that the results were good for the USD.

I am glad I got out of all G pairs its sinking like a rock. Brexit drama may get real uglier
With thin liquidity and risk aversion its easier pushing price now

NZD has become the safest heaven....for time being.Nothing touches it now.I remember when liberal lefty government took over it sunk like a rock when same government still there....Forex is funny

Good profits on A/J E/C U/C N/C E/A. Been a good month so far. It's funny how you start to recognise patterns with this method.

One thing I learnt is not to get greedy and I like to bank and move on.

R/S 61 = Target WPP

R/S 78/100 = Target R/S 38

Its funny how when I do this I realise that this targets become resistance/support of the last swing.

Too bad run out of margin to sell EG when it was 90+thanks to my shitload of trades almost 200 positions

Added more shorts on EC

Draghi looks like wants EU below 12 very dovish very different divergence then the Feds who moronically pushing USD higher.Why raise rates when everyone is standing tight is oxymoron. Powell should be fired!If Feds increase in Dec its going to get ugly on Wall Street

I am thinking much lower 1.48

Oil recovery slowly may taker place 2019 once current inventories get consumed. 60-70 range

After Dec 20 UC may drop to 1.30 and lower hence EC should easily reach 148 and lower

Its important to keep a positive and upbeat attitude even when you take a loss. I took a 6k loss but did not dent my attitude or goals or trading plans.

If you don't want to get burn don't become a cook! 😊 I always maintained I measure my success in quarters and last Q I am way up so even with -6k I am still in Green ! You must move on past losses and think on successes to become. I am basically a fighter no matter what happens! 🍷 You must keep that samurai spirit intact!

Quoting Davit

Its important to keep a positive and upbeat attitude even when you take a loss. I took a 6k loss but did not dent my attitude or goals or trading plans. If you don't want to get burn don't become a cook! 😊 I always maintained I measure my success in quarters and last Q I am way up so even with -6k I am still in Green ! You must move on past losses and think on successes to become.I am basically a fighter no matter what happens! 👍 You must keep that samurai spirit intact! {image}

Hello Davit.

Great attitude! Typical winner attitude!

I've been here for a while silently.

Can I ask you how did you loss nearly 10% of your account when you determine your risk before every entry? (2-3%) Or you risk more than 2-3%? Or just waited too much to goes into profit and you cut it.

Thank you for your reply!

I am anticipating UJ gaining out of nowhere soon....This may effect greatly on crosses specially on NJ which has been going up without correction.

Another reason why did not want to hold CJ because if Yen gains quickly it will push crosses down.

Anyway that's what's going in my head... UJ short already! Higher TF is still bullish hence 1387 61R still is in play...but may not reach it and that's why I am shorting it now

While I appreciate your sentiment I been doing this many years and no longer have those emotions.Losses are part of trading and I don't think about it emotionally after and what may end up final number by the end of the year it will be result of not one batch of trades but hundreds and hundreds of them.

I am past stage to worry about such things.

Just a beat a high ranking guy
Really interesting game
Last 3 moves before a mate in 1

Basically I have a attention disorder and play chess constantly when I am trading since I can't stare at the screen too long.I don't think its a negative thing but effects when I am watching a movie and pausing every 10min to play chess or do something else why I don't go to movie theaters because I can't pay attention for hour and half...

Anyway trading suits my disposition.

Unexpected data coming out, e.g. French contraction and overall EUR PMI below forecast while Italy negotiations still ongoing, Brexit deal unresolved and China data printed red. All this strengthen one more time USD with dollar index currently at 97.50 below WR100.

I closed part of my long CJ and AN to free up some margin.

ECB staying tight on rates and keeps on buying bonds and Euro blog slowing down while our own Feds are recklessly raising rates and may cause global turmoil if they do it in Dec. Markets are fragile and good chance we are heading back to recession thanks to Powell and his moronic team.

They are so idiotic that it pisses me up when wages go up a little they go "oh no its inflationary lets raise rates" killing any optimism on its tracks. GM just cut thousands of Jobs and probably more to come from other sectors...

FK you Jeremy Powell what I feel honestly now. I hope you are reading this! What thousands of hard working Americans feel about you!

Hi Rafat

I am assuming you meant GBP/CAD

Pivots weekly start beginning of the week and end Friday. New pivots not formed yet and anything has to do with GBP is Brexit contingent

Personally I would advise not trading GBP for a while

These were great trades for me. It paid me good. @Davit I know you don't like CHF pairs but I took these trades instead of EJ short because ChfJpy was around WR100 and WR78. The levels are extreme. EJ was hanging out near WR38. If you want, I can delete. {image}

Not trading CHF is only a suggestion you can do what works for you! 🍺

Good busy week coming up. Unfortunately I have not been trading since my broker disappeared some candles on my charts. But staying busy looking at news and set ups to stay on tip top shape.

Looking into Dukascopy since they have great swap rates, Pepperstone, Oanda, and possibly FXCM to start fresh next year. If you recall my Mom passed beginning of Jan so a bit sad and no need to bring that to trading.

Glad you all making pips. 💰💰🔥

Listen guys

Don't ever fall for guys who open banana island broker accounts and gamble bonus money of 100 then boast about it. FF is full of TE's posting extraordinary gains but you don't see same guys after 6 months or a year with same TE's ! Why? Very likely the account is blown away.

This is logical you can gamble 100 with high leverage, lose, repeat lose ,repeat and until you get a lucky run then dilute yourself its real trading then blow the account again!

This is not trading! Only total idiots practice shit like this.Risking recklessly 100 is not same as risking 10k Evening guys hope we all had a good weekend. My plan for this week is to stay in the EURGBP trade, with the red news planned this week and with brexit i think we may see it go all the way to 0.87 over the next few days/weeks. Any thoughts on this ??

Exactly this. Serious committed traders don't have the desire to showboat. And showing off your TE is a kiss of death. More mental pressure is applied to gains for show, rather than to setups to extract $$$ from.

If you want to show off, then take your trade history to a prop firm and see if they back you.

Trade with confidence, trade without fear.

Hi Mag

Thanks and welcome to drop by anytime you like. Its funny that every 3 months my name pops up in somebody else agenda. This business is full of unscrupulous characters.
regards

The irony is most banana island "brokers" offer bonuses and if do make money you wont be able to take out! Its a common scam. Guy boasting about this is laughable or is he promoting his business venture singling me out to get traffic?

Looks like market assumes Feds will raise to 2.5 and good chance may not. If they do how much of it is priced in? Seems based on prices USD may have already topped out Experience has taught me to wait for price to hit 61 then start stalking the market for good entries. Each week i wait for price to hit 61 ALWAYS.

Out of UJ, there may be more downside movement but happy with gains! Will look to short on future strength.

Massive drop of crude why CAD is weakening but after Dec 20 should recover. End of the Year thin liquidity easier to push price for weak stops get bonuses and celebrate. What MM's do

CJ is worth a look

Bounced off from S61. I anticipate UJ reaching 1350-80 again before plummeting 110 and below.

Oil dropped to 49 then bouncing up now.Can someone post a WTI chart with pivots? Thank you just like to know where it bounced off from pivot wise

I agree there. I use smaller lots and closer TP targets at this time of the year....jus a Money Management concept used in times of thin liquidity. Thank you.

Following good outcome for ANZ Business Outlook the unstoppable march of NZD continues, it's stronger than all other currencies. 😊
Now the point is to see when it will start to reverse.

{quote} my long CJ also in big DD. i dont understand why cad so weak against j pair...

Good Morning guys

After Feds rate hike Market went in panic mode dumping everything. That sentiment intensified with year's end and holiday factors.

I believe with factual results that Feds massively blander on rate hike. This coming on slowing US and global economies and intensified equity sell offs hence panic run to Yen and USD

USD most likely will go into deeper correction since more hikes in 2019 is unlikely after this fiasco. Trump is correct being frustrated with JP this guy is just pencil pusher and no grasp of significance of Feds actions. It will not surprise me if they start cutting rate back if market continues to plummet.

Needlessly to say I had a tough week like many other traders and these includes stock traders. I have to trim more trades when market opens.

Anyway Enjoy the Holidays and Merry Christmas

I am Orthodox Christian going to leave you with this to listen! Enjoy

Hi guys

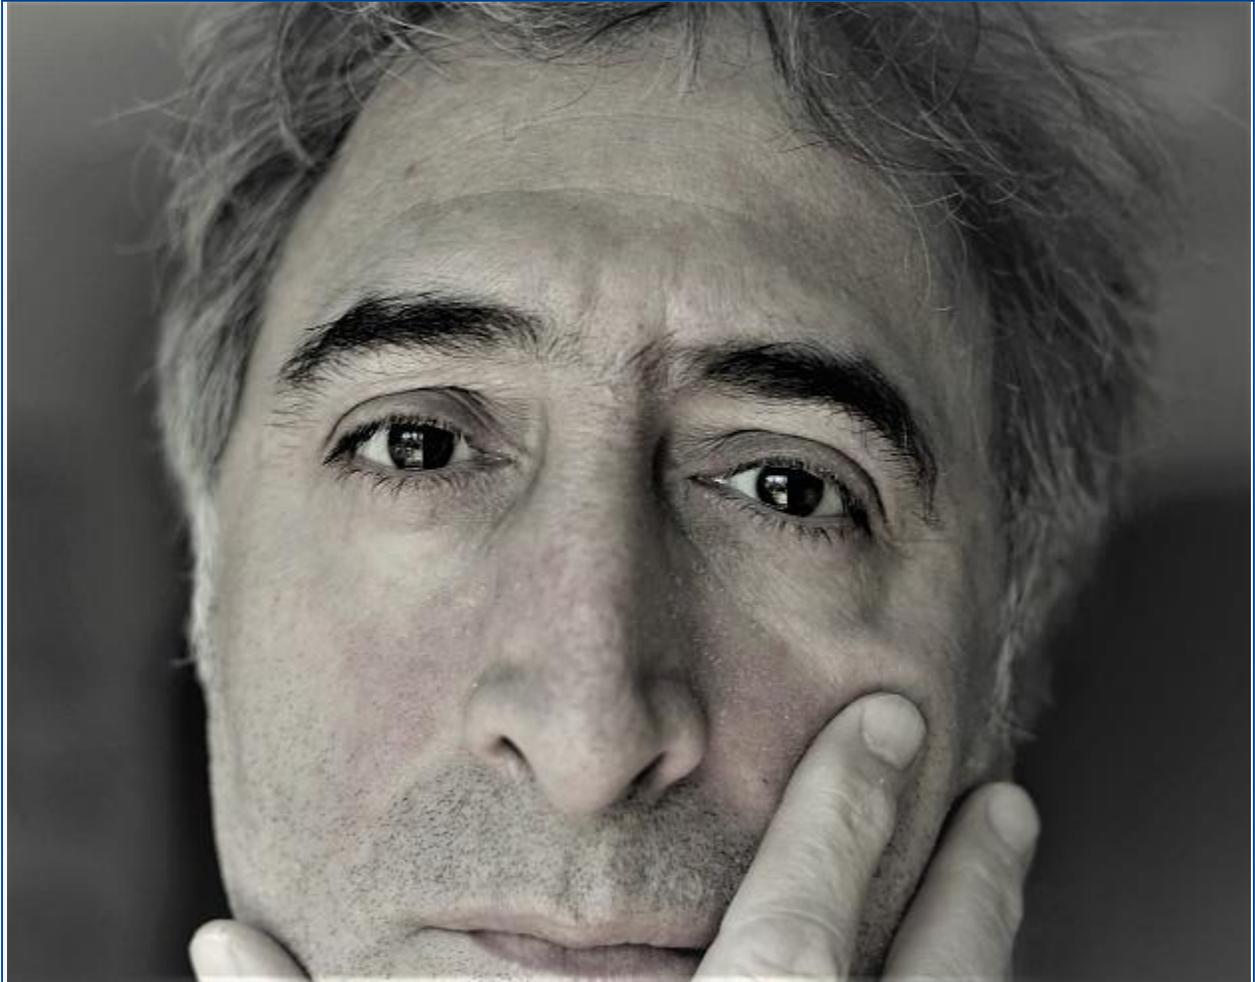

Some intense stop hunting but I escaped relatively light damage. Gave back some profits. Its fine one can't predict these kinds of wild moves but generally perhaps should of taken entire Dec off. Next year will do that. Liquidity not there and moves are erratic.

Anyway I spent Christmas alone since my family on vacation (my new job did not give me that option 90days probation period.)

Took the opportunity to play with my New to me Canon T6 DSLR

Here is one I really like self portrait (since I am alone...)
